AT HOME ON EARTH

Martha's Vineyard's Only Sustainable Living Magazine

Features stories about sustainable homes with lush spreads, conversations with Islanders addressing climate change, and easy access to information on how to live a more environmentally friendly life here on Martha's Vineyard. Departments include travel, events, cars, food, and innovation/design and is printed on recycled stock.

The Art of Island Landscapes

This August issue will highlight Island artists and the works that celebrate our landscapes, traditions, and wildlife.

This makes it a great platform for galleries, artists, and former Arts and Ideas advertisers to get their work in front of an enthusiastic audience.

Our story "The art and Life of the Great Ponds" will feature the works of dozens of Island artists.

Alison Shaw photographed this heron on the shores of Oyster Pond. You can see it at the current Granary Gallery show.

Look for stories on:

- Traditional Wampanoag Conservation Practices
- The Solarazzas' solar, straw-bale VH home
- Lawn? Or Disorder?, and thoughts on electric mowers
- What.On.Earth: Storm surge
- Rebecca Gilbert's Weed Wisdom + recipes
- Buy Less/Buy Better: Local Makers
- Good Libations: Sustainable summer drinks
- Currier Cruises with Jesse Fuller
- Artist Cindy Kane's new climate project
- Local Heroes: Tess Bramhall and Pam Goff
- And What's so Bad about Pavement
- Field Note: MV Atlas of Life update

- Composting Tricks (and how salons recycle their product containers)

Advertisers: This is the perfect space for you to get your ads in front of thousands of Islanders! There will be 8,000 magazines printed and distributed around the Island through late October and over 5,000 readers opening our digital newsletter bi-weekly.

Ad deadline: Thursday July 21
